1. General Risk Warning

This document provides a summary of the potential risks associated with trading leveraged financial instruments, including but not limited to spot foreign exchange (Forex), commodities, indices, and contracts for difference (CFDs). Trading these products involves a high level of risk and is not suitable for every investor. You should carefully assess your financial situation, level of experience, and risk tolerance before engaging in such transactions.

2. Leverage and Margin Risk

Trading on leverage amplifies both gains and losses. A small market movement can result in significant profit or loss relative to the funds deposited. You may lose the entire initial margin and may be required to deposit additional funds on short notice to maintain your positions. Failure to meet margin requirements may result in the closure of open positions at a loss, and you will be responsible for any resulting deficit.

3. Order Execution and Market Conditions

Certain orders, such as stop-loss or limit orders, may not always protect against losses due to market volatility, slippage, or liquidity issues. During fast-moving or illiquid markets, execution prices may differ significantly from the requested price, and Snabbx Capital LTD cannot guarantee order execution at exact levels.

4. Market Restrictions and Volatility

Regulatory changes, political events, or other external factors can lead to sharp market movements or limit your ability to execute or close trades. Such circumstances may increase the risk of loss and affect pricing relationships between correlated markets.

5. Weekend and Holiday Risk

Financial markets are typically closed during weekends and holidays. News events or global developments occurring during these periods may cause markets to open at substantially different prices from their previous close. Holding positions overnight or over weekends exposes traders to the risk of price gaps and slippage when markets reopen.

6. Electronic Trading and System Risk

Trading through electronic platforms carries risks related to software, hardware, and internet connectivity. Delays, system failures, or connectivity issues may prevent orders from being executed or modified as intended. Snabbx Capital LTD shall not be liable for any losses resulting from such technical interruptions or failures beyond its control.

7. Over-the-Counter (OTC) Transactions

Trading OTC products means you are entering transactions directly with Snabbx Capital LTD as the counterparty, rather than through an exchange. As a result, your ability to close or offset positions may depend on the firm's ability to provide liquidity, and regulatory protections applicable to exchange-traded products may not apply.

8. Counterparty Risk

Snabbx Capital LTD acts as principal to your trades. If the company becomes insolvent or unable to fulfill its financial obligations, you may face delays or losses in recovering your funds. You should only trade with capital you can afford to lose.

9. Third Parties and Introducing Brokers

In cases where clients are referred to Snabbx Capital LTD through introducing brokers or third-party affiliates, it is important to understand that such parties are independent of Snabbx Capital LTD. The company does not assume responsibility for any representations, advice, or actions taken by such intermediaries.

10. Acknowledgment

By opening an account or executing transactions with Snabbx Capital LTD, you acknowledge that you have read, understood, and accepted the risks outlined in this disclosure. You confirm that you are capable of bearing the financial and emotional consequences of trading leveraged instruments.
